A State of Change

Dear Students:

Of my many years in education, I can recall no more challenging time to be teaching than now because of the profound changes that are occurring in American higher education. As this exciting, new learning environment develops at Piedmont College, you will see in your courses an increased application of computer-assisted instruction. Our faculty is becoming more informed about interdisciplinary study and more attuned to sophisticated and creative delivery systems. Students' needs are also changing, for the average age of our student population is increasing as people spread their education over a longer period of time. As these changes raise the cost of providing quality education, colleges must meet the challenge and discover new sources of financial aid from both public and private sources.

While such transitions in higher education may produce an impersonal learning environment at some colleges, Piedmont College is committed to preserving interaction between faculty and every student on campus. We believe personal, individualized attention to the students' investment of time and intellectual talent will provide the necessary preparation for our extremely complicated world. As Piedmont College promised its students almost 100 years ago, we provide four years of exceptional education in a Christian, caring community. The faculty and I will do everything we can to maintain this long-standing tradition. Our doors are always open.

Sincerely,
W. Ray Cleere

Dr. Cleere discusses his plans for the upcoming year with Dr. Stafford and Elizabeth Veal.

Dr. W. Ray Cleere and Mrs. W. Ray Cleere

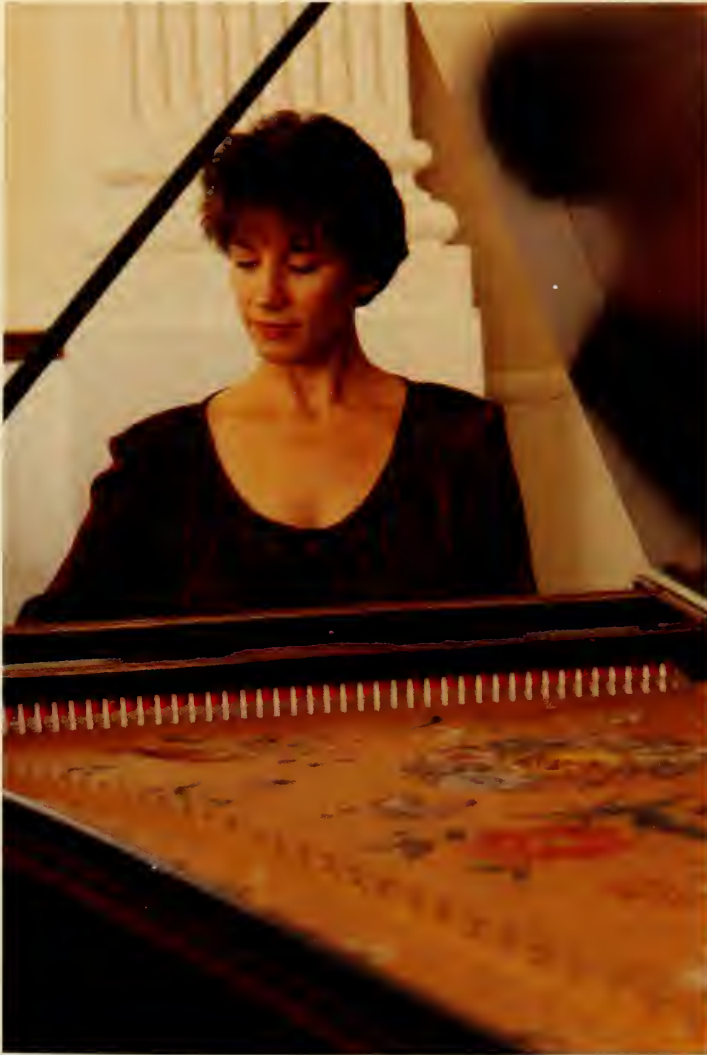

The 95-96 academic year was an exciting time of transition. Many of the changes were "pitched" by Dr. Cleere early in the year. As time progressed, he proved to be a man of his word.

Dr. Lee, Dean Adams, and Dr. Cleere worked closely together to achieve the goals for the year.

What is it that they say about all work and no play?

*J*ohn Seville observes his creation with a cautious eye as he prepares for the student art show.

*E*legance pours from the fingers of music major Rhonda Amato, as she plays the campus harpsichord.

*D*uring their visit to the Royal Shakespeare Theater in Stratford, England, Drew Vandiver, Karen Saghini, and Jeremy Miller are transformed into Shakespearean priests and warriors.

What's your State of Mind?

Piedmont College's unique blend of students, faculty, and staff gives the college an atmosphere where education, both in and out of the classroom, flourishes. The state of mind on campus is in constant motion. As the year progresses, the balancing act between classes and extra-curricular activity becomes more difficult.

In spite of the stresses of college life, the Piedmont community has learned that through laughter and friendship anything is possible.

Seniors Marcy Cincotta and Liz Kelly have found the perfect balance between study, leisure, and friendship.

Students such as Fairlight Dover are always proud to share accomplishments with mom and dad.

As a result of the friendly and scenic environment of Piedmont College, close to 300 students choose to reside on campus.

A State of Grace

*M*ichael Anderson, a tenor for the Piedmont College Chamber Singers, performs at the first concert of the year.

*B*iology student, Eric Pfiel searches for wildlife while receiving hands-on field experience.

*T*hese ladies enjoy each other's company at the Homecoming Fair. Each year the usually quiet quadrangle is transformed into a gathering place for students old and new.

*B*en Price and friend take a break between classes to catch-up on the events of the past weekend.

More often than not, Piedmont College exists in a state of grace. Studies outside the classroom, performances, and even casual conversation prove to be arenas for showcasing a variety of talents and interests. A great deal of hard work, dedication, and laughter are necessities.

*D*r. Camp introduces several of his students to a new friend that was recently discovered in the woods.

*B*rian Jones demonstrates the latest dance craze while capturing a balloon as a souvenir of the evening.

*P*iedmont students dance off the days' stresses. This year's Homecoming took place in the gymnasium. Over 200 people turned out for the event. This group included students, faculty, staff, and even a few alumni.

Homecoming 1995

On September 29th, Marc Antonini and Cathrine DeLyra were crowned 1995 Homecoming King and Queen. Elected to serve on the Homecoming court this year were: Jeni Adams, Maurice Chin, Kelly Duckett, Neil Gosdin, Wyatt Herndon, C.T. Hussion, Dusty Roach, Jana Roach, Brad Roland, Jessica Simmons, Hope Skelton, Elizabeth Veal, and Sheila Wood.

Chris Boss and Seth Daniel impress the ladies with their breakdancing skill. (Who said the eighties were over?!)

As the "winner" of this year's annual pig-kissing contest, Dean Brooks achieves pucker perfection with Penelope the pig.

Wendy Dukes soars for the sky on the popular Trampoline Thing sponsored by Campus Activities.

Shashonna Davis adds a whipped-cream highlight to Maurice Chinn's hair as Tonya Elrod lends moral support.

Dr. Loffredo discusses the "real world" with former student, Mark Payne. Homecoming is a time for both recreation and reunion.

Sumo wrestler extraordinaire, Rob Wainberg, smiles at a nearby adoring fan.

Two of Charlie's Angels, Jan Elger and Dr. Cynthia Vance, fight to protect the quad from the evil youngster.

Water guns sold by the GLB club were bought for both offensive and defensive motives. Here, a group refuels.

Expressing our minds

*R*obert Smith shares a glance with a near-by friend.

*P*iedmont students dance the night away at Homecoming '95.

*S*ome students learn about communication with the string game.

*D*r. Stafford, are you trying to tie up your loose ends?

*T*hey get younger and younger every year.

*D*r. Cleere and his dog go for a short walk.

Campus police hard at work.

An umpire and Joe Lattanzi, a Piedmont alumnus, laugh over an argument at the Piedmont alumni v.s. Piedmont students baseball game.

Two students stop for a quick chat before class.

Dr. Wallace Hinson

*D*r. Hinson conducts the Piedmont Chorale at the Christmas Concert of Lessons and Carols in December.

*T*his year, the yearbook staff is proud to dedicate the 1995-1996 Yonahian to Dr. Wallace Hinson. Dr. Hinson is Assistant Professor of Music, Director of Choral Ensembles at Piedmont College. He conducts both the Piedmont College Chamber Singers and Chorale. He is also instructor of voice and conducting.

Through music he touches the hearts of the college and surrounding communities. He is known for being an excellent professor, a stern motivator, and a caring friend.

Dr. Hinson has a Bachelor of Music Education and Master of Music Education from the University of Central Arkansas, and Doctor of Musical Arts in Choral Conducting and Literature degree from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Thank you for all that you do here at Piedmont.

*D*r. White and Dr. Hinson perform for the audience of The Bald Soprano in 1995.

A State of Service

After a long day of invigorating lectures, students enter the cafeteria where they can count on seeing the smiling face of June Tench shown here at the faculty/staff picnic. June is one of the many staff members on campus who takes pride in serving the Piedmont Community. Maintenance crews, grounds keepers, food service workers, and clean-up crews all work to maintain the order of the campus.

The Piedmont College Dining Services Staff: Charles Shores, Doug Fitzgerald, Theda Moore, Rhonda Bishop, Myrle Maloy, and Margie Fry

Work Crews, like this one called in to turn the Maintenance building into the new science lab and fitness center, were seen throughout the year on campus as several changes were made.

Ellen Williams can always be found helping to keep the campus clean.

LUAU | 1995

...A Fall Tradition

Free Food always ensures that a large number of students, faculty, and staff will attend this annual event. Designed by the residence life staff, the luau is a major landmark signifying the beginning of a new academic year. Students often show up to check out the food and end up staying to mingle with their peers and the “brave” faculty and staff who choose to participate. The festive activities last well into the night and are interesting topics of discussion during the first week of classes.

Sand sculpting and hula-hoop contests are combined with volleyball and tropical cuisine to create an afternoon of laughter and suspense. The partygoers lounge on this hill near the volleyball court and enjoy Piedmont’s version of Hawaiian madness.

Smiles like those on the faces of Spencer Wright and Kelly Church (shown above right) are a true testament of the luau’s success. After a night full of passion fruit, pineapples, and play getting up for class doesn’t seem too difficult.

Josh, Lissette, and Shashonna (left) passionately discuss the evening.

The dorm rooms often house a variety of interesting objects as shown here by David.

These women (above) are on their way "home" after purchasing books and supplies from the campus bookstore.

DORM Living

...A home away from home

Living together takes on a whole new meaning at Piedmont. The residence halls are the center of activity throughout the year. Beginning in late summer, the residence life staff can be seen preparing for the arrival of students by setting up each dorm and planning activities. Students move into their rooms fall semester and soon after call their new quarters home.

On any given night, the residents of Getman-Babcock Hall can be seen lounging on the couch, talking with friends in the Gazebo, or yes, even studying (for one of Dr. Pleysier's tests, of course). Purcell residents, on the other hand, take advantage of being close to the athletic fields by playing a game of volleyball or shooting hoops in their very own parking lot.

Wallace residents find ways to occupy themselves as well. The smell of fresh food cooking on the apartment stoves often brings the other dorm students out to either sample the fine Wallace cuisine or to survey the damage. All of the students who choose to reside on campus become part of a unique second family.

It's Moving Day!

SPRING formal

...A night on the town

Let's Dance could be heard echoing through the halls of Gainesville's Cafe Julius as the 1996 Spring Formal beat its way into the night. Gathering in a hall decorated by the Student Government Association, students, faculty and staff enjoyed the jazzy sounds of the band Daddy-o-Strut and crowded the dance floor during every number. Between sets, couples sat at tables and ate from an eclectic assortment of refreshments.

CAMPUS changes

...A year for additions

This year saw several improvements. The student center was transformed into a brand new campus book store and grill. Many afternoons students were found shopping, snacking, playing on the new pool table and watching the large screen t.v.. The student center is on its way to becoming a favorite campus hangout. Dr. Cleere and Elizabeth Veal are shown here at the ribbon cutting ceremony for the bookstore.

The old maintenance shed became both an area for the science labs and the fitness center. The fitness center, which is partly owned by the Habersham County Medical center, is free for all students. Wellness is a strong focus on campus.

Piedmont is expanding its borders as well. A center in Athens, headed by Dr. Shumake, opened this year. The center is designed to serve a growing population of junior and senior undergraduates as well as graduate students in the greater Athens area.

These students (left) take advantage of the updated chemical lab facilities.

SPRING carnival

...A celebration for charity

“There’s a first time for everything” has certainly been true for Piedmont this year as the first annual Spring Spectacular got underway in April. Sponsored by S.G.A. and The Alumni Association, this carnival was one of the highlights of the spring semester.

In correspondence with Alumni day and Spring Applicants day, the carnival was designed as a fund-raising event for the Circle of Hope, a Habersham County shelter for women. Among other events, human bowling, the velcro wall, sumo wrestling, and a variety of club sponsored activities brought enough people to the event to raise over $700.

The fun and excitement can be seen on the faces of Ben Price and Chris Bell as they stand in line to fling themselves against the velcro wall. Hopefully, the carnival will continue to be an event for many years to come.

You two guys need to check out the fitness center across the street!

GROUP travel

...A Time to Learn and Laugh

Each year various groups of Piedmont students travel all over the United States. This year their destinations were concentrated in the Southeast. The funding for these trips comes from a combination of determined club members and grants made by the Inter Club Council, a subcommittee of SGA.

Six different clubs and student groups took such trips this year to attend various conferences and educational seminars.

The Psychology Club and Psi Chi members went to Norfolk, VA, the Math and Physics Club visited Washington, D.C., and SIFE, Students in Free Enterprise attended the Annual SIFE Regional Exposition in St. Petersburg, Florida. Also traveling to Florida were the Piedmont Scholars, who journeyed to historic St. Augustine. Theatre students made their way to Louisville, Kentucky for the Southeastern Theatre Conference and the Literary Society made their annual trip to Mississippi.

TRAVEL abroad

...An Opportunity of a Lifetime

Recently Piedmont College has made it possible for students to travel to other nations to do in depth studies in their respective fields. The goal is to enhance learning and offer a means of acquiring valuable field experience. Plans for the future include more study abroad programs.

Siberia was the destination of a group of history and archaeology students. Led by Dr. Al Pleysier, these students examined the ancient site of Arkaim and participated in archaeological work at a prehistoric Bronze Age village. Three students from this trip are shown here at the campsite.

English and theatre students found themselves in England to study Shakespeare and other writers born there. The two week trip was packed with activities including a theatre workshop, visits to several museums, and tours of important landmarks such as the Shakespeare properties.
